A Typical Work Day

My aunt Sara has a great job at an orangutan sanctuary. She's the daytime babysitter for a five month-old orangutan called Coco. Coco's mother died, so they need to take care of her 24 hours a day. When my aunt arrives in the morning, she gives Coco milk in her bottle and changes her nappy. She does this several times a day. Then she works as Coco's teacher, teaching her the skills she needs for living in the forest, such as climbing. Coco likes climbing up, but not down! She screams for my aunt's help sometimes. My aunt hugs her when she gets scared. In the early evening, it's Coco's bedtime, and their time together that day is over. My aunt puts Coco to bed and goes home. My aunt says, 'I love Coco, and I love my job!'
